2.2 Website Content & Doctrine

There is Biblical information all over this website. It's in our blog posts, our notes, our projects, headlines, subject lines, etc. There are Godly topics and Christian anime illustrations and images posted on the website intended for older mindsets. We uphold the law of Yahweh and everything the Book states. We are not like most groups as we do not have a religion we swear by. AW simply follows Yahweh and does what the Book says without putting our human views, feelings, opinions, theories etc. into what we do as professionals. Our Christian creators who we sponsor also have links and bios that point to Christianity. We endorse the entire Book and the original 200 books at Unaligned Academy® (UA). If such content and doctrine offend you, you do not have permission to create an account or enroll at UA.

2.2 Social Media

When someone follows us on social medias we will never ask that person their age, sex, or location. We will never tell them our age, sex, or location either. Any information parents/legal guardians need they can find on our website and other platforms we are a part, such as LinkedIn, Instagram and X. Our Team page has all the information we provide to the public unless a situation requires us to give out more information, but in most cases, we do not need to do that and our followers shouldn't expect us to do that.

We can't stop people of younger ages from following us directly because many platforms allow anyone to simply click and follow. What we can do is limit who we engage with publicly and privately. By reading our Social Media Policy you acknowledge the warnings we give you, the risks involved if you disregard our warnings and accept that AW reserves the legal right to press charges against minors who try to trap us and accuse us of doing inappropriate conduct. When speaking to minors, we do so publicly on feeds or walls.

All calls made to the organization and any emails or text messages on platforms are archived for training and protection purposes.

2.4 Copyrights & Fanworks

All projects, illustrations, digital illustrations created by our devs are © Copyright of AW, our affiliates. All rights reserved. We will not tolerate theft. If AW and or an affiliate of AW find our content uploaded on other sites by fans or third-party websites without our permission, we reserve the right to press charges and have legal documentation stating we can do so. We strongly advise people to not download artwork or stories through third parties.

If a fan is doing a review, podcast commentary about our projects or our business partner's projects in a YouTube documentary or commentary, then he/she can post the original artwork they find on Google or via social media. This is not an act of theft and anyone can do take copies of the artwork or request to use copies of the artwork and will be protected by "Fair Use". The only condition AW and Artzenin require is the fan giving proper credit to the original source, which would be our website or our affiliate's websites.

Fanart is fine if the artist does not claim the work as their own and abides by our Fanworks Policy. We welcome fanworks of all kinds, but the moment we see plagiarism or suspect artists are using our projects to make profit for themselves we can and will press charges for copyright infringement. To clarify, drawing artwork is fine. Drawing artwork or using scenes from our projects in your fanworks and turning around to sell those creations for money is stealing. If AW or one of our affiliates catches you doing this, then your privileges will be revoked and you will be cut off from all our services, as well as charged with a lawsuit.
