A.) What Are Cookies?

Cookies are simple text files stored on your computer or mobile device by a website's server, unique to your web browser. They contain anonymous information like a unique identifier, the website's domain name, and some digits and numbers. In another context, cookies are small text pieces sent by websites you visit to remember information about your visit, enhancing your experience every time you visit. A not so nice way of saying it, they're programmed data bots that collect information about you, which can come off as an invasion of privacy—and it is when you don't consent to the business that you want to “Accept All Cookies”.

B.) Are Cookies Safe?

If used responsibly and not for privacy invasion or data selling, cookies are safe. Cookies serve various purposes such as playing videos, managing shopping carts, displaying personalized ads, analytics, and more. Our website's cookies are safe and are only aimed at personalizing your online experience for added convenience. If you prefer not to use cookies, you can disable them in your web browser's settings or choose not to save cookies from our website and any other website you don't want to allow to save cookie information.

C.) The GDPR & CCPA

Due to international laws like the EU's General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and certain state laws, like the California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA), many websites are now required to ask for permission to use certain cookies with your browser and provide you with information on how their cookies will be used if you accept. We have this banner in place that will explain to you what are cookies do and don't do. You have the option to "Accept All" or the option to "Decline". Even with that being said, we have acted and disabled unnecessary cookies for visitors and members of our community.
